Once he had his own TV series but now Rick’s a washed-up villain of the week drowning his sorrows in whiskey sours. Will a phone call from Rome save his fate or seal it? Cliff Booth, Rick’s stunt double, and the most infamous man on any movie set because he’s the only one there who might have gotten away with murder. Sharon Tate, she left Texas to chase a movie star dream and found it. Sharon’s salad days are now spent on Cielo Drive high in the Hollywood Hills. Anna Karenina: The Screenplay

With an introduction by Tom Stoppard, our most esteemed living playwright adapts the most famous love story ever written in the screenplay for the new Focus Features film Anna Karenina directed by Joe Wright starring Keira Knightley and Jude Law. Tolstoy’s brilliant novel tracing the tragic love affair between Count Vronsky and the unhappily married Anna has moved readers and generations now. Award-winning playwright Tom Stoppard reimagines what Vladimir Nabokov called one of the greatest love stories in world literature for the screen in an impeccable match of talent between source and adaptation. Stoppard projects Tolstoy’s powerful contrasts between city and country, love and death, happiness and unhappiness. The result is beautiful, stirring, and at once old and new. A special introduction by Stoppard offers a glimpse into the process behind his remarkable interpretation.

Love and Glory

Boone Adams was so smart he wrote half the English papers for the freshman class when he wasn’t getting drunk at night and waking up hung over in the morning. JENNIFER GRAYLE she was the campus golden girl so rich, so pretty that every boy wanted to take her out except Boone. He wanted to marry her. John Merchent was tall and blond with blue eyes and a cleft in his chin like Cary Grant. He didn’t have Boone’s lively imagination but he had something else. Jennifer praise for Love and Glory, Robert Parker writes with economy and precision and wit and passion. Love and Glory is one of the best love stories I’ve ever encountered. The Press Chronicle: A straightforward, unrelenting, shamelessly romantic novel that is about a two-year obsession. It works and love stories that work are almost an extinct breed. Almost Santa Cruz Sentinel: Parker’s writing is like fine architecture or music—it’s both intricate and direct. There are no false notes. Chicago Sun Times: The last century’s most original literary talents. Daily Telegraph: Wickedly readable every woman instinctively wants to read her New York Times Book Review. Somehow more personal than Daphne Du Maurier’s other novels. Kirkus Reviews: When people play the game name three or four persons whom you would choose to have with you on a desert island. They never choose the Delaneys. They don’t even choose us. One by one as individuals we have earned not always fairly. We consider the reputation of being difficult guests. Maria Niall and Celia have grown up in the shadow of their famous parents. Their father is a flamboyant singer and their mother is a talented dancer. Now pursuing their own creative dreams. All three siblings feel an undeniable bond but it is Maria and Niall who share the secret of their parents’ pasts: alternately comic and poignant. The Parasites: Based on the artistic milieu its author knew best and draws the reader effortlessly into that magical world.

It’s sad but true to say that today Edward Morgan Forster’s works are known more from their film and television adaptations rather than from their original novels. Yet these adaptations have spurred many a fascinated viewer into going back to the library and finding the book that the film or miniseries was based on and this is ultimately the power of Forster’s literary appeal. Howard’s End was published in 1910 and it marked Forster’s first taste of critical and commercial success. He had published three other novels earlier where angels fear to tread 1905 the longest journey 1907 and a room with a view 1908 but none of them had been received with so much acclaim. The plot concerns two sisters Margaret and Helen Schlegel wealthy independent and intellectual who enjoy a privileged life filled with music, theatre, literature, and art. Their lively group of friends meets often to discuss the questions of the day with passion and exuberance. Helen meets Paul Wilcox, the son of a commercially successful businessman. Henry Wilcox, and falls in love with him. However, the affair ends badly and the Schlegel sisters slip back into their routine. Another chance meeting at a concert brings Helen in contact with the poor but socially aspiring bank employee Leonard Bast. Meanwhile, the sisters are taken aback when the Wilcoxes move into a flat opposite theirs. Margaret and Mrs. Wilcox strike up a deep and spiritual friendship when Mrs. Wilcox suddenly dies. Her materialistic family finds a scribbled note in which she has left her beautiful country home Howard’s End to Margaret. What follows is the soul-stirring collision between the three points of view represented by these sets of people. The intricately woven plot with its multiple strands constantly meeting and dissolving into each other makes Howard’s End an unforgettable and very poignant exploration of our moral universe. One of the prophetic questions it asks and gets no answer for is: who shall inherit our England which foreshadows the great social shifts following the Great Wars. There are some beautiful evocative passages in the book as in Helen’s experience of Beethoven’s Fifth where she imagines goblins marching across the world.
