Preventing Deadly Conflict 1998 conflict is inherent to all human and inter state relations but it is not inevitable since the end of the cold war the prevention of conflict escalation into violence through management and resolution has become a fundamental objective of the international system so how does prevention work when it works and what can be done when tried and tested practices fail in this book i william zartman offers a clear and authoritative guide to the key challenges of conflict prevention and the norms processes and methods used to dampen and diffuse inter and intra state conflict in the contemporary world early stage techniques including awareness de escalation stalemate ripening and resolution are explored in full alongside the late or crisis stage techniques of interruption separation and integration prevention he argues is a battle that is never won there is always more work to be done the search for prevention Preventing Deadly Conflict 2015-12-22 drawing on work conducted by the Carnegie Commission on preventing deadly conflict a study of the prevention of war and genocide examines such concepts as preventive diplomacy the role of civil society socioeconomic development and international cooperation

Deadly Conflict – Beginning of the End 2006-07-19 this book represents the first attempt to holistically document and analyze the causes of deadly conflict in Liberia from its founding to the present it reconstructs and examines the root operational and catalytic causes of eighteen internal deadly conflicts that transpired in Liberia between 1822 and 2003 including the 1980 coup d'etat against the Tolbert regime and the great war 1989-2003 the book seeks to answer two primary questions what are the historical causes of deadly conflict in Liberia and to what extent has the evolution of settler nationalism and authoritarianism contributed to the stimulation of conflict between settler and native Liberians to answer these questions Levitt examines a continuum of circular causation among the state of affairs that led to the founding of the Liberian state the evolution of settler authoritarianism and nationalism and internal conflict by analyzing these processes together the causes of eighteen conflicts are revealed and thoroughly discussed the book also has three major objectives to determine the historical causes of deadly conflict in Liberia in particular the underlining historical phenomena responsible for birthing the great war to present an alternative framework to comprehend and examine the aged conflict dynamic between settler and indigenous Liberians and within Liberian society itself and to produce the first comprehensive study of deadly conflict in Liberia this book advantageously spans the fields of political science history international law and peace and conflict studies it is an excellent interdisciplinary choice Dr Levitt has meticulously investigated the major violent conflicts in Liberia's tortured history and convincingly traced their roots to political institutions of domination and control that remain at the foundation of Liberia's system of governance today the book's message for Liberia's future is unmistakable Amos Sawyer professor and associate director Workshop in Political Theory and Policy Analysis Indiana University Bloomington and former interim president of Liberia Ignat He is the definitive work on the causes of Liberia's cycle of deadly conflict the vital importance of Dr Levitt's work is clear only by understanding those root causes can Liberians and those who wish them well hope to find an exit from the cycle David Wippman professor of law and vice provost for international relations Cornell University this is an excellent book Levitt deserves great credit for its quality thoroughness and the care of his research Crawford Young professor emeritus Department of Political Science University of Wisconsin Madison a new original work with fresh perspective that is well grounded in history and theory and of great value to Liberian studies and to the theoretical literature on deadly conflict DL Wood Dunn professor chair of political science University of the South TN former Liberian government official Levitt's painstaking documentation of the deadly conflicts makes a most useful contribution to the ongoing governance debate this work is a major contribution to understanding the primary factors that collapsed the Liberian state Dr Byron Tarr development consultants Inc Monrovia Liberia Levitt for his part makes a major contribution to our understanding both of Liberia's past and how that past ought to inform our understanding of the present indeed his is the first systematic accounting for the many nation building conflicts of Liberia African Studies review

The Evolution of Deadly Conflict in Liberia 2005 the international community can creatively and aggressively address deadly conflict through mediation arbitration and the development of international institutions to promote reconciliation the editors of this book designed a systematic framework with which contributors compare third party intervention in twelve conflicts of the post cold war period they examine the role of international organizations the united nations international development banks and international law institutions and they analyze the tools and forms of leverage in successful and unsuccessful mediations

Preventing Deadly Conflict 1998-06 rapport over de bestrijding van dodelijke conflicten tussen landen over de hele wereld

Preventing Deadly Conflict 2003 as the world comes to grips with the realities of a new international system the prevention of deadly conflict has become a focus of efforts to secure a peaceful prosperous environment conflict prevention is a daunting and complex challenge embracing operations to avert war to contain a war once it has begun and to suppress the renewal of war in the aftermath of a cease fire or a peace accord the last of these cases the suppression of renewed conflict is particularly problematic because operations are often carried out in an environment of overt hatreds and deep seated suspicions in the midst of economic and social ruín brought on by the war thus a range of economic political military and social issues must be addressed virtually simultaneously suppression of renewed conflict demands at its most basic level enlightened and imaginative implementation and coordination of both the civilian and the military aspects of the peace accords civilian military implementation thus becomes the sine qua non for sustaining the cease fire and for building an enduring peace in this paper we will present a set of principles for civilian military implementation of peace agreements outline structural functional imperatives for integrating and coordinating the efforts of the international community and suggest that the key to prevention of a renewal of deadly conflict lies in the establishment of an effective civilian military implementation staff cmis

Words Over War 2000-01-12 offering an assessment of the theory and practice of conflict resolution in post cold war conflicts this book addresses a number of questions it explores the nature of contemporary conflict and the development of conflict resolution

Preventing Deadly Conflict : Final Report 1998 what would have happened had the road not taken been the chosen action in past conflict interventions what can we learn from a close look at alternatives that were not selected drawing on six detailed case studies the balkans haiti libera somalia and zaire congo i william zartman identifies a series of missed opportunities options that arguably would have provided feasible and better outcomes for the reduction of violent conflict and the prevention of state collapse zartman specifies potential solutions within the entire trajectory of each conflict considering in each instance why the indicated decisions were not taken the principles and mechanisms that he develops in the course of his analysis have profound implications for the actions of the international community in preventing conflicts from escalating to violence and for managing violent situations when they do occur

Preventing Deadly Conflict 1997 in this provocative study policy savvy scholars examine a wide range of cases from north korea to south africa to el salvador and bosnia to demonstrate the power of incentives to deter nuclear proliferation prevent armed conflict defend civil and human rights and rebuild war torn societies the book addresses the moral hazard of incentives the danger that they can be construed as bribes concessions or appeasement the cases demonstrate that incentives can sometimes succeed when traditional methods threats sanctions or force fail or are too dangerous to apply

Civilian-Military Cooperation in the Prevention of Deadly Conflict, Implementing Agreements in Bosnia and Beyond 1995 three inescapable observations form the foundation of this report first deadly conflict is not inevitable violence on the scale of what we have seen in bosnia rwanda somalia and elsewhere does not emerge inexorably from human interaction second the need to prevent deadly conflict is increasingly urgent the rapid compression of the world through breathtaking population growth technological advancement and economic interdependence combined with the readily available supply of deadly weapons and easily transmitted contagion of hatred and incitement to violence make it essential and urgent to find ways to prevent disputes from turning massively violent third preventing deadly conflict is possible the problem is not that we do not know about incipient and large scale violence it is that we often do not act examples from hot spots around the world illustrate that the potential for violence can be defused through the early skillful and integrated application of political diplomatic economic and military measures the carnegie commission on preventing deadly conflict does not believe in the unavoidable clash of civilizations or in an inevitably violent future war and mass violence usually result from deliberate political decisions and the commission believes that these decisions can be affected so that mass violence does not result to undertake effective preventive action the commission believes that we must develop an international commitment to the concept of prevention a habit of preventive investment more effective regimes for controlling destructive weaponry and a working portfolio of legal standards that rest on a normative consensus regarding the responsibilities of governments to each other and to their peoples responsible leaders key intergovernmental and nongovernmental institutions and civil society can do far better in preventing deadly conflict than the record of this century and the current epidemic of violence suggest c

Contemporary Conflict Resolution 2005-12-08 as the world comes to grips with the realities of a new international system the prevention of deadly conflict has become a focus of efforts to secure a peaceful prosperous environment conflict prevention is a daunting and complex challenge embracing operations to avert war to contain a war once it has begun and to suppress the renewal of war in the aftermath of a cease fire or a peace accord the last of these cases the suppression of renewed conflict is particularly problematic because operations are often carried out in an environment of overt hatreds and deep seated suspicions in the midst of economic and social ruin brought on by the war thus a range of economic political military and social issues must be addressed virtually simultaneously suppression of renewed conflict demands at its most basic level enlightened and imaginative implementation and coordination of both the civilian and the military aspects of the peace accords civilian military implementation thus becomes the sine qua non for sustaining the cease fire and for building an enduring peace in this paper we will present a set of principles for civilian military implementation of peace agreements outline structural functional imperatives for integrating and coordinating the efforts of the international community and suggest that the key to prevention of a renewal of deadly conflict lies in the establishment of an effective civilian military implementation staff cmis

The Price of Peace 1997 when it comes to conflict resolution is an ounce of prevention worth a pound of cure scholars present an analytical and methodological framework for evaluating this question with case studies from various countries to test this assertion

Preventing Deadly Conflict 1998 the specific question we explore is what are the special roles and responsibilities of democracies in preventing deadly conflict not only between themselves but also among other states in the international system as david hamburg has observed the established democracies are likely to take the lead in formulating international norms of conduct with respect to intergroup relations the proliferation of highly lethal weaponry economic development in poorer nations human rights and the growth of democratic institutions the north atlantic treaty organization is a prime example of the ability of the established democracies to work together hamburg then goes on to ask provocatively could a similar alliance involving a wider coalition of democracies be organized to ensure security on a worldwide basis fuel economic growth with fairness protect cultural diversity and foster democratic values 2 we focus here on the particular roles and responsibilities of democracies not to diminish the significance of other essential actors rather recognizing that democracies wield great power we explore their commensurate obligation to assume great responsibilities at the outset it may be useful page 2
