Los autores José Antonio Álvarez Lobato, Tania Chávez y Zochitl Flores, junto con destacados estudiosos mexicanos como Carlos Anselin y Jim Simmons, abordan el contexto de las estructuras comerciales y de servicios, con el objetivo de analizar el pasado, presente y futuro de la geografía aplicada. Participan en esta obra principales exponentes de la geografía contemporánea como Brian J.L. Berry, Neil Wrigley, Richard Shearmur, Luc Anselin, entre otros.

El libro se centra en el uso de modelos logit para determinar si existe un premio por la co-localización en la formación de actores. También analiza cómo los factores de proximidad pueden hacer que los actores se vuelvan móviles y cruzar redes regionales. La geografía de innovación se estudia en relación con la formación de clusters económicos y la internacionalización.

En términos de la globalización, el libro explora las ideas de globalización y regionalismo, así como las crisis migratorias y el intercambio internacional. Los autores también abordan aspectos de la prevención de conflictos étnicos y las medidas para promover el desarrollo sostenible.

El libro incluye una sección especial dedicada a la geografía de la innovación en África urbana y las adaptaciones a la气候变化. Los autores abordan desde diversas perspectivas las respuestas a la adaptación a la气候变化 en diferentes sectores y áreas geográficas.

El libro también aborda la relación entre la innovación y la economía, particularmente en el contexto de la productividad decreciente en general. Se discuten las fuentes de la aglomeración y la dispersión de la innovación, así como las redes globales de producción y entrega de bienes y servicios.

La geografía y la innovación están en constante evolución, y el libro se centra en el papel de las ciudades y las aglomeraciones regionales en el proceso de desarrollo económico. Se incluye contenido relevante para los profesionales, los académicos y los estudiantes de geografía, desarrollo urbano y gestión, ciencia ambiental, y otros campos relacionados.

En resumen, el libro proporciona una plataforma para el debate y la colaboración entre los geógrafos, los sociólogos de la educación y otros, brindando viewpoints de lectores y enfoques de investigación más actualizados y autorizados para discutir las claves del desarrollo económico y la innovación en el contexto de la globalización.
urbanas vinculados a los avances en el análisis espacial orientados a las actividades terciarias en el espacio intra urbano particularmente en ciudades mexicanas los autores analizan casos de estudio con el objetivo de explorar el futuro de la geografía comercial dentro de las ciudades centrándose en el interés por entender los avances terciarios además el trabajo muestra que en realidad no parece haber un consenso hacia el significado de la geografía comercial los autores señalan que los usos del término clúster se refieren a empresas aglomeradas terciarias y destacan que un clúster es la European macro regions, euroregions, and other forms of inter-regional cross-border cooperation have helped to shape new scenarios and new relational spaces which may generate opportunities for economic development while redefining the political and economic meaning of national borders. This book is based on a number of key case studies which are crucial to understanding the complex web of political-economic and cultural factors that shape the heterogeneous picture of Europe's new geography. This book provides a fresh view on this phenomenon with a realistic approach, shedding light on its complexity as well as on its ambiguities. The new macro regions are interpreted with an approach recognizing the importance of institutionalization but also their flexible configuration and blurred borders. The book also raises the issue of credibility and legitimacy, arguing that inter-regional cooperation has to be removed from the foggy realm of the exchanges between local political and bureaucratic elites in order to be clearly and concretely motivated and functional to key strategic objectives of the regions. Finally, the authors suggest a complementarity between relations based on proximity and wider possibly global networks, where some territories and especially metropolises find opportunities based on virtual proximity. Europe's changing geography provides a substantial reassessment of a key phenomenon in the process of European integration today. It will be of interest both to scholars of the political economy of European regionalism and to practitioners.

In recent years, there have been several alarming predictions about the future of the planet's fish stocks as a result of many national governments and supranational institutions, including the European Union, having instituted reforms designed to mitigate the crisis. This book examines the discourse and practice of good governance in the context of fisheries management. It starts by examining the crisis of fisheries in the North Sea caused primarily by overfishing and failure of the European Union's Common Fisheries Policy. It then goes on to analyse reforms to this policy enacted and planned between 2002 and 2013 and the proposition that collapse of fish stocks could occur as a result of deficiencies in new governing arrangements, i.e., failure to apply principles of good governance. The book argues that impediments to good governance practice in fisheries are not merely the result of implementation deficits but that they constitute a more systematic failure. Governance theory addresses issues of power, but it does not recognize the many important spatially contingent and relational forms of power that are exercised in actual governing practice. For example, it frequently overlooks spatial practices and strategies such as scale jumping, rescaling, and the discursive redrawing of governing boundaries. This book exposes some of these spatial power relationships and shows that the presence of such relationships has implications for accountability and effective policymaking. In sum, this book explores some of the ways in which we might better understand governance practice using theories of scale and relational concepts of power and in the process it offers a critique and rethinking of governance theory. These reflections are made on the basis of an in-depth case study of the attempted pursuit of good governance in the European Union via institutional reforms focusing particularly on the North Sea fisheries management.

through successive industrial revolutions the geography of innovation around the globe has changed radically and with it the geography of wealth creation and prosperity since the third industrial revolution high incomes are increasingly metropolitan leading to a renewal of inter regional divergence within countries these metropolitan areas are also hotbeds of innovation at the same time global networks for the production and delivery of goods and services have expanded greatly in recent decades the globalization of production is mirrored in the globalization of innovation this paper argues that the emerging geography of innovation can be characterized as a globalized hub to hub system rather than a geography of overall spread of innovation although much attention has been given to explaining the rise and growth of innovation clusters there is as yet no unified framework for the micro foundations of the agglomeration and dispersion of innovation in addition there appear to be strong links between growing geographical inequality of innovation and prosperity particularly within countries this is particularly relevant in the context of declining overall research productivity which could be driving growing geographical concentration all in all there is a rich agenda for continuing to investigate the relationship between the geography of innovation economic development and income distribution
