modern poetry in general in invisible fences steven monte places prose poetry in historical and theoretical perspective by comparing its development in the french and american literary traditions in spite of its apparent formal freedom prose poetry is constrained by specific historical circumstances and is constantly engaged in border disputes with neighboring prose and poetic genres monte illuminates these constraints through an examination of works that have influenced the development of the prose poem as well as through a discussion of genre theory and detailed readings of poems ranging from charles baudelaire s la solitude to john ashbery s the system monte explores the ways in which literary historical narratives affect interpretation why for example prose poetry tends to be seen as a revolutionary genre and how this perspective influences readings of individual works the american poets he discusses include ralph waldo emerson william carlos williams t s eliot gertrude stein and ashbery the french poets range from baudelaire arthur rimbaud and stephane mallarmä to max jacob in exploring prose poetry as a genre invisible fences offers new perspectives not only on modern poetry but also on genre itself challenging current theories of genre with a test case that asks for yet eludes definition there is a sacred river that runs through the cosmos composed of all knowledge past and present only shamans and bards of the rarest order are able to approach its radiant waters and to utter the visions they encounter on its banks ray gonzalez has drunk from that river and the poetry he has given us is rich with truths and wonders now he enters the realm of the prose poem and raises its possibilities to new heights it seems as if the form was discovered in order to carry his vision morton marcus prose poetry in theory and practice vigorously engages with the why and the how of prose poetry a form that is currently enjoying a surge in popularity with contributions by both practitioners and academics this volume seeks to explore how its distinctive properties guide both writer and reader and to address why this form is so well suited to the early 21st century with discussion of both classic and less well known writers the essays both illuminate prose poetry s distinctive features and explore how this outsider form can offer a unique way of viewing and describing the uncertainties and instabilities which shape our identities and our relationships with our surroundings in

Mary Oliver's poetry is fine and deep. It reads like a blessing, wrote Stanley Kunitz many years ago, and recently Rita Dove described her last volume, The Leaf and the Cloud, as a brilliant meditation. For the many admirers of Mary Oliver's dazzling poetry and luminous vision as well as for those who may be coming to her work for the first time, what do we know will be a revelation? These forty poems of observing, searching, pausing, astonishment, and giving thanks embrace in every sense the natural world: its unrepeatable moments and its ceaseless cycles. Mary Oliver evokes unforgettable images from one hundred white-sided dolphins on a summer day to bees that have memorized every stalk and leaf in a field even as she reminds us after Emerson that the invisible and imponderable is the sole fact.

Lastly, her soul antidotes are written in the true form of prose, the themes of this book are life based right from the heart as Dianne engages both common and uncommon prose for the art and pleasure of it. This writing endeavor has been instrumental as a means to decipher the deeper meanings in life perhaps for many of us, it involves love, loss, friendship, faith, hope, and the expansion of soul may it be both entertaining and enlightening to you and your life experience as you go along for the read. An excerpt from the book:

I feel therefore I know I am and my pen wrote although the step before me is not yet known I feel my feet on my path I know I am on my path.
I saw a mother holding her new baby in her arms. I felt love although I am neither mother nor baby. I feel love. I know love. I saw a man crying on the bus. So deep was his pain; I know not the source of his sorrow. Yet I felt his pain. I know pain. Walking, I saw a tree dancing in the wind. It motioned dance with me. I did not hear the invitation. I felt it, and together we danced. Are these mere memories or something deeper shared by all humankind in the kingdom outside the mind?
